Nominations Sought for the 23rd Annual Public Health Award

McLean County Health Department looking to honor a county resident who has furthered public health principles and practices

BLOOMINGTON – The McLean County Health Department is seeking nominations for the 2015 Public Health Award. Every November, the health department recognizes a McLean County resident who furthers public health principles and practices by providing services in the county. The nominee's public health contribution can be professional or occupational, either as a volunteer or in a paid capacity. Nomination submission guidelines and forms can be found on the McLean County Health Department website: <http://health.mcleancountyil.gov> or can be picked up during business hours at the health department: 200 West Front Street, Bloomington.

The deadline to submit nominations is Wednesday, October 21st at 11:59 p.m.

Nominees should have made an impact on the community through their contributions in public health areas including:

- Aging Population
- Communicable Disease
- Community / Individual Mental Health
- Dental Health
- Employee Wellness
- Environmental Health
- Fitness and Nutrition
- Health Education
- Individuals with Disabilities
- Injury Prevention: home, road and worksite
- Maternal / Child Health
- Other health-related fields

The McLean County Health Department is dedicated to the prevention and control of disease through health promotion, early intervention and health protection within our county.
